Welcome to Gaeta!

Gaeta is a city in the province of Latina, in Lazio, Southern Italy. Set in the Gulf of Gaeta, it is 120 km from Rome and 80 km from Naples. The European PhD School on 'Power Electronics, Electrical Machines, Energy Control' takes place at the Angevin Castle located in the ancient part of Gaeta.

The thick walls of the Angevin Castle of Gaeta, steeped in history, conceal contemporary event rooms owned by the University of Cassino. The lecture hall, exhibition space and poster session areas are spread around the catering area in the inner courtyard. Just a few steps up to the roof or out of the gate, you have a view of the roofs of and the glittering blue Mediterranean.

The location and Italian hospitality is certainly an argument for many PhD students to take part here. But in the end, it is above all an excellent opportunity to exchange ideas with other participants, to take away interesting impulses from the lectures and the discussions with industry representatives and to network!

How to get to Gaeta?

Rome and Naples airports are well connected to the train transport. From the next train station (Formia Gaeta) we are organising a taxi service for exhibitors & sponsors. Alternatively, we recommend to book a rental car. There is a bus shuttle for the social dinner. Your booth equipment (packages, no parcels) can be sent to a hotel in Gaeta (address given after registration) and we will take care of the transport to the castle. For bigger exhibits please contact us in advance.
